Tool Description

TrailWare 2.0	Data processing software for reports and Trail Access Information.
Suunto Compass	Used to take bearing readings. Trail bearing information adds detail to new trail maps and verifies existing trail maps.
Suunto Clinometer	Measures average grade between stations in both percent and degrees.
SmartTool™ with Feet	Uses percent to measure cross slope at each station and sections of trail with maximum grade and cross slope. Beneficial Designs has added feet to this digital instrument to improve the accuracy of the readings.
Rolatape	Measures distance to stations and obstacles. Folds for easy storage in a carrying bag. Unit of measurement: Feet.
Marking flags	4"x 5" fluorescent pink flags used to mark TAI stations; pre-printed with Universal Trail Assessment Process logo, Trail Assessment in Progress, Please do not remove flags.
Tool Kit Bag	A convenient 12" x 24" carrying bag to hold all of the tools. Can be checked or used as carry-on baggage for air travel.
Backpack	Used to carry first aid kit, water, data forms and measurement flags while performing the trail assessment.
First Aid Kit	A complete kit designed for two to three people.
Dictaphone/ Cassettes	Used to record descriptive information about the trail. Dictaphone uses standard micro-cassettes.
Training Guide	Describes the Universal Trail Assessment Process in detail. All trainees receive a copy as part of the workshop registration fee.
Fast Facts	Laminated Trail Assessment Process reference cards that fit easily on both sides of a clipboard.
UTAP T-shirt	This 100% cotton T-shirt features the UTAP logo in blue and black.
TAI Graphics	Seventeen graphics included in higher resolution TIF format. Files include: Universal Access Information, Grade, Cross Slope, Tread Width, Surface Types (Paved, Hard, Firm, Soft, and Very Soft), Rock, Root, Rut, Step, Stairs, Poisonous Plants, Thermal Hazard, and Drop-off. An Adobe Illustrator layout template of the Trail Access Information is included to simplify the creation of signage.
